

BUCKINGHAM PALACE

24th July, 1990.

Dear Clifford,

I am commanded by The Queen to thank you for bringing here to Buckingham Palace your painting Tjapaltjarri Dreaming, which I passed to Her Majesty this morning. The Queen is most grateful to you for this kind gift and sends her warm thanks. It is very appropriate that such a splendid example of the work now being done by Aborigines in Central Australia should find a place in the Royal Collection.

The Queen was very glad to have had the chance of meeting you and talking with you at her Garden Party last week. She would be grateful if you would take her greetings to all your people at home in Australia.

*Yours sincerely,
William Speeltime*

Mr. Clifford Possum.
