

Art @ Regent's Place - Spring Stroll Through Fitzrovia

Posted by Regent's Place on 14th March 2017 | 0 comments

Interested in seeing world-class contemporary art over lunch or after work?

Regent's Place makes the perfect starting point for a spring stroll through nearby Fitzrovia towards Oxford Street. Long established as a creative hub, Fitzrovia is home to a cluster of well-established and emerging artistic ventures. Our art curator, Rosie Glenn, has been taking a closer look, here's her suggested route from the office to the West End via amazing art, all free to view and mostly open daily.

First stop, just off Cleveland Street, is Rebecca Hossack Gallery in Conway Street where Barbara Macfarlane's map inspired works are showcased in Landmark showing now until 1 April. One of Fitzrovia's longest established residents, Australian born Rebecca Hossack manages a second space in nearby Charlotte Street which is showing Soliloquy, a series of dreamlike and fantasy themed photographs by Queensland artist Toby Burrows on now until 1 April.

Images courtesy of the artist and the Rebecca Hossack Art Gallery.