

£10,000 of Fenn Wright & Manson clothes to be won

SHE

A close-up photograph of blonde hair, likely belonging to a woman, which serves as the background for the main title 'SHE'.

AN OPEN MARRIAGE

"He only sleeps

APRIL 1997 £2

SHE APRIL 1997

04

A SHE PROMOTION

Discover the artist in you with new Hewlett-Packard Pavilion home computers

living colour

Nothing is ever black and white. That's why Hewlett-Packard has designed its Pavilion range of home computers which allow you to explore a world of colour and creativity.

With an HP Pavilion PC and colour printer, you can create personalised stationery, greetings cards or business reports with a truly professional finish. And that's on top of all the other benefits you get from a state-of-the-art PC: stunning graphics; pre-installed software titles including word processing and financial packages, educational software and games; powerful Pentium MMX processors and access to the Internet.

The HP Pavilion PC has unique features which make it a genuine breakthrough in home computing. The first difference will be obvious the moment you see it: the HP Pavilion PC has been designed by a specialist company in California so that it looks attractive in your home. The traditional angular lines of most computers have been replaced with stylish soft curves that are pleasing to the eye – you won't want to shut the Pavilion away in the study.

But Pavilion's most exciting feature is the PhotoDrive. This is a built-in scanner that enables you to save pictures into your computer, edit them and print them out in glorious colour – in effect, giving you your own photo studio in your own home.

This will revolutionise the way you use your computer. For instance, imagine you've just taken the perfect photo and you want to show it off. Simply feed the picture into the postcard-size drive, which scans it into the computer. You can edit it – get rid of that ugly lamppost in the background, for instance – and then print it out, e-mail it to friends and family, or store it on screen in your own photo album. You can do this to any image: baby snaps, a picture of a car you're trying to sell, or a logo for your stationery. The potential is unlimited.

When used with the HP DeskJet 690C printer, an affordable printer that's capable of producing photographic quality colour images, you can incorporate a desired image into cards, letters, personalised stationery and even posters and banners. It has a whole host of personal and business uses.

Then, when, it's your children's turn to have a go, they'll love the HP Pavilion PC's range of educational programmes and sophisticated 3D interactive games. For your peace of mind, there's even a "kid-mode" security feature, so that you can limit your children's access to certain areas.

Setting up the HP Pavilion PC is easy, too. Colour-coded cables make installation straightforward and a special "welcome" package guides you through set-up in an average of 15 minutes, with a "first aid recovery kit" to help with any problems. With the Pavilion, home computing has never been so simple – or so much fun.

Pavilion revolutionises the way you use your home computer

The Pavilion PC range, priced from £1,299, is available at leading computer retail stores, including Byte, PC World and John Lewis.

You can scan colour pictures via Pavilion's unique PhotoDrive and print them off in full technicolour on Hewlett-Packard's DeskJet 690C Printer

Reader event

See the HP Pavilion in action at the Rebecca Hossack Gallery, London, on April 24 from 6-8pm. The artist Fred Pollock will be exhibiting his work and attending the event. You will receive a signed limited-edition print of one of his paintings, printed by the HP DeskJet 690C. Plus, there's the chance to win an HP 200 LX Personal Organiser worth more than £450. Merchandise from Next Interiors will be also be shown and complimentary drinks and canapes will be served. Tickets cost £5 and places are limited, so don't delay. Fill in this coupon and send it, with payment, to SHE/HP Event, Central Promotions, National Magazine House, 72 Broadwick Street, London W1V 2BP by April 11 1997.

Please send me (insert amount) tickets for the SHE/Hewlett-Packard Reader Event.

Name _____

Address _____

Tel no _____

 HEWLETT PACKARD