Rebecca Hossack

10 TOP Indigenous artists

Australian-born Rebecca Hossack has championed Australian and Indigenous Australian art in her London-based galleries for more than 25 years. Here, her picks for Australian Indigenous artists to buy now.

Owen Yalandja: "A brilliant sculptor, from Maningrida of central Arnhem Land, he carves, then paints, mysterious fish-tailed mermaid-figures called yarakyarak. They have both an assured restraint and a sinuous energy."

Lloyd Kwilla: "One of the younger generation of painters to emerge from the Kimberly region of north Western Australia. Kwilla uses ochres to create images of great formal elegance, that seem to connect directly with the land they depict."

Jonathan Jones: "A young Sydney-based Aboriginal, Jonathan Jones assembles quietly powerful sculptures using electric light."

Jimmy Pike (c1940–2002): "Born in the Western Australian desert, Pike has a strong traditional understanding but a strong individual artistic vision: brilliantly controlled bands of colour, vivid motifs and a dash of humour."

Jerry Hall and Helmut Newton, photographed by David Bailey in 1973.

12 BAILEY'S BEST

London's National Portrait Gallery presents Bailey's Stardust, the largest collection of work by illustrious photographer David Bailey, until June 1. The exhibition, sponsored by Hugo Boss, is curated by Bailey himself and features more than 250 portraits spanning 50 years. Can't make it to London? Purchase the online catalogue at www.npg.org.uk.

Isabella Rossellini

11 GREEN PORNO

Italian screen icon Isabella Rossellini is touring Australia in March with her spectacularly strange project Green Porno, a one-woman stage show about the mating habits of animals, which has been dubbed by New York Magazine as "beautifully bizarre". The show kicks off in Adelaide on March 15 then heads to Perth, Sydney, Brisbane and Melbourne.

13 BY THE BOOK

These art books chronicle the lives of Salvador Dali, Jackson Pollock and Andy Warhol and include striking illustrations. This is Dali, This is Pollock (out in April), This is Warhol (Thames & Hudson, $19.95 each).
